

Dear Commission, Having instant weather and traffic updates on satellite radio is not only convenient but helps improve safety on the road. As you are traveling through these metropolitan areas you can go right to the channel that is assigned for that area. If you try to get the same information on the local stations you are driving down the road flipping through the channels, taking your attention off the road as you have to shift through music, commercials, and even talk shows to find traffic or weather information. Possibly not finding the traffic information until you are stuck in a traffic jam. Having instant traffic and weather information at a push of a button is a great asset to the trucking community, it gets them the information they need to move their products more efficiently, avoiding traffic jams and weather events that can delay them, costing them time and fuel.
